The United States Law Week Award was won by Francis Howard Deremer.

The Elizabeth Maxwell Carroll Chesnut Prize was awarded to Neil Tabor.

There were 451 students enrolled in the Law School in the Fall of 1951. Of these, 210 were in the Day School and 241 in the Evening School. The entering Day class contained 71 members, and the entering Evening class contained 83 members. There were 100 colleges and universities represented in the pre-legal training of the student body.

Professor Frederick W. Invernizzi, of the full time faculty, taught the course in Negotiable Instruments during the summer of 1951 in the Summer Session of the George Washington University Law School, Washington, D.C.

CONCERNING THE REVIEW

As this issue of the REVIEW is going to press, the plan is that the following issue, to wit, Volume XII, Number 4, Fall, 1951, shall consist of the cumulative index to the first twelve volumes of the REVIEW, which has been in preparation for some time.

Thus it is that the cumulative index will be supplied to the subscribers to the REVIEW without further charge, and they will have it available at the end of Volume XII. Because of this arrangement, this issue of the REVIEW contains the usual Volume Index to Volume XII alone, as the only material in the fourth number will be the cumulative index.
